TWICE PROVEN

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing urinary disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Norway evidence—doubly proven.

E. C. Libby, Sanborn St., Norway, says: "I had a great deal of backache, which annoyed me to do anything. My head ached and I noticed specks floating before my eyes and my sight blurred. I used different remedies but it was left to Doan's Kidney Pills to give me lasting results. I got Doan's at Stone's Drug Store and since using them I have had no return of kidney complaint." (Statement given June 6, 1916.)

On September 3, 1920, Mr. Libby said: "I haven't had occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills or any other kidney medicine since being cured by Doan's. My faith in this remedy is just as strong as ever."

Cuts Better Lasts Longer

You will appreciate the John Deere Mower the moment you see it in action. You will notice particularly its simplicity, its great cutting power and the ease with which it is handled. These advantages, combined with the extra years of service it gives, makes the John Deere a mighty profitable mower investment.

JOHN DEERE MOWER The Mower with the Balanced Gears

The driving gears on the John Deere are balanced—one set offsets the thrust of the other set. This eliminates side wear and strain. This mower transmits maximum power to the high grade carefully-fitted knife—that's why the John Deere does a better job of cutting and pulls lighter.

The flexibility of the cutter bar on the John Deere fits it for use in rough, uneven fields or for weed-cutting on roadsides—this feature you will like.

SIZES: John Deere No. 1 regular frame mower—3½, 4½ and 5-ft. cut. John Deere No. 2 big frame mower for severe cutting and field conditions—4½, 5, 5½ and 7-ft. cut.

Another feature—if after years of use, leg develops in the cutter bar, this can be taken out—the bar is aligned by a simple eccentric adjustment. The John Deere handles easily. The bar can be raised high with the foot lever to pass over ordinary obstructions. With the hand lever an extremely high lift can be secured quickly and easily.

It's no job to keep the John Deere in good running order. All parts are easily replaced; adjustments easily made—its simplicity is a real feature.

Be sure to see this mower before you buy.
It's the best mower we have ever seen.

Also, John Deere Hay Loaders, Side Delivery Rakes and Haying Machinery of all kinds.

All our implements were bought at the lowest prices that Farm Machinery has touched in five years and we are making our prices accordingly.

PORTLAND HEAD LIGHT

By Fred M. Davis

Those who have ever traveled round to the back side of Fort Williams at Portland Harbor will remember that getting to Portland Head Light is like gazing at a casket of gems in a museum, you can look but that is all. It so happened last fall that while at Portland Me., late one afternoon I took a Cape Elizabeth car, passed over the million dollar bridge and soon arrived at Fort Williams. A soldier in uniform met me at the gate. I raised my right hand and tried to display as much militarism as my knowledge would allow. I accosted him the best I knew and he bade me pass saying no one would hinder me. After walking a short distance I overtook a man who related to me that he had been a patient there at the Soldiers Hospital for some time but hardly knew where the Light was himself. I knew it must be in the near vicinity and with what little instruction he gave me I was soon at the dwelling and gave a soft tap on the door. Callers at this place are not very plentiful and the woman who met me at the door looked at me in wonderment as if to say "Where have I seen that man before?" I did not wonder at her attitude for she was an old time acquaintance and I had not seen her since thirty years ago. Time had dealt kindly with her, she looked strikingly young and far beyond what I expected.

"Well, I should have known you," she said, "but it sure has been a long time since I was up in the Oxford County hills where first we met."

"This is my husband," she said as I stood in the kitchen face to face with a middle aged man and I knew full well that I was speaking to a man of gentle ways and kind temperament.

"And you married a light-house keeper, well strange things do happen sure."

"Yes Fred, that is true and we have been here a long time and as we are unable to mingle very much with the outer world, life here of course is more or less monotonous but still we try to be happy."

"Yes," I said and I knew full well the joy and thrill that comes to any one who fills a trusty position such as this.

"And of course the sea is always interesting." "Yes, Fred, you are right, it is nothing strange here in time of a heavy storm to have the waves break over the cliffs and spatter and leave salt streaks on the windows. And the blast of the Fog Horn that groans out over the broad expanse of the Atlantic through the long hours of the night, giving the sailor boy safely home to the harbor of safety."

"Perhaps you would like to visit the Light before dark," the keeper said as he arose from his chair and looked at me earnestly. "Yes," I said and I followed him along out through the corridor that led to the foot of the tower.

"As I have a slight headache," he said, "I will not go up now," so I started to journey up the winding stairs alone. Step by step I ascended, stopping at short intervals. My very breath echoed within the walls of this small enclosure. I had been told to do as I liked and on reaching the top I pushed aside the drape that covered the powerful lens as directed. On going up the shaft I had noticed that the walls were white as milk and an inscription on the wall told me that George Washington chose the first keeper of this light in 1790. I wondered at the longevity of this Light and the spic and span condition. The light itself presented an appearance as being built but yesterday.

The view of the open sea was unsurpassed and I breathed deep breaths for a minute of salt air that is so different from inland and viewed the white sails and clouds of black smoke that died away in the distance.

On my return to the kitchen I could see that the woman of the house had prepared a supper fit for a King. "Do you like lobster?" the keeper said, as he invited me to be seated at the head of the table and at the same time calling my attention to the whole lobster that had been broiled and prepared for me alone. "I guess it will surprise my stomach some," I said. The keeper smiled as we gathered round the good things to eat that could well be called a shore dinner.

I lit the good brand of cigar that had been left beside my plate after I finished eating and while all hands gathered the kitchen stove I enjoyed a talk of happenings and old time folks of by gone days. They spoke of the soldier that was shot there at Fort Williams during the late war and admitted that every flash and sound was nerve racking.

It was a late hour when I started to wend my way out through the government reservation. A light was placed in the window as a dense fog came in that night from sea. I was soon under one of the arc lights farther up from shore and had taken one of the many walks when something fell on my ears that sounded like strains of music. I walked a short distance and soon stood near a building used for amusement and to entertain the soldiers that were stationed there. I saw a dark figure in the dim light just ahead of me and after taking a few steps farther I was confronted by a soldier, point blank, with a drawn sword. "Was he an outlaw?" "No, not that," He was a soldier on his regular beat and only doing his duty as a good soldier should. He looked at me earnestly when I told him I took supper at the Light and met an old time acquaintance I had not seen since thirty years ago. He told me there was a time during the world war that visitors were not allowed but at the present time I would be welcome. After inquiring if it was on the right road that led to the main gate he told me that I was.

I soon boarded a car that would take me back to the city and I hoped it would not be thirty years before I should pay another visit to the Light. The keeper had told me that he was something of a fisherman and had boats in readiness to use if I should come any time in the future. His wife was no one else than Hattie Bonney, daughter of the late Arthur Bonney, who died at the old home at Greenwood many years ago.

The old bell and the distant roar of the breakers all helped me to well remember my visit to Portland Head Light.

FROM FLORIDA TO MAINE

By Lydia Lord Shedd

A guide player on this crystal formation in the form of a pipe organ with sticks and the music from it sounds like chiming of bells in old cathedral towers. The calcite formation is wonderful. The cavern is like a mammoth mansion with rooms leading out from all quarters. As one of the books on the caves describes it as being like a spider's web and not running in a long line.

There is a "Natural Bridge," some steps leading to it. Many stairways have been built in the caves. The Fish Market looks very much like a room hung with long rows of fish of all shapes and sizes.

Beside the foundation of crystal and stone, there are some beautiful silver lakes, surrounded by stalactites. The clearest of water. Crystal Lake is wonderful. The "Imperial Spring" reflects the stalactites in the wonderful arch overhead, in many colors.

In the latest discovery are some wonderful sights. The Sunken City, the Skeleton Gorge has a railing around the deep chasm. About two years ago the largest and highest room in the cave was opened. This room is called the Palace of Splendors. This has the finest calcite formation in the world. Here is a natural image of the Madonna. These caverns are open every hour, night and day. Sundays too, throughout the year. There are competent guides to show these wonderful caverns. If six people or more are in the party, no extra charge is made for electric lights. Less than six, the caves are shown by candle light, or if the parties wish the electric lights, for five persons, 25 cents each extra, 50 cents for three or four. One person, $2 beside the entrance fee. The Norfolk & Western railway station is one mile from the entrance to the caverns; here buses meet all trains.

There are some fine hotels in Lural. Excursion tickets are sold by all steam ships and railroads to the Lural caverns. Our thoughts turn, back to Old Virginia more often than to any other place, excepting Florida.

Our tenth and next stopping was at Washington, D. C., at Hotel Harris, where we made our first stop in our trip to Florida by train. It seemed like home to get back to this splendid hotel.

Our driver took us through the entire city in sight seeing before we reached our hotel. We were very glad to find our good rooms again. Many pictures were taken of Washington on our first day there. We honor the city and its people for the kindness shown the colored folks there. They are respected by all and have the same privileges, while farther south they are treated as inferiors, and not allowed to mingle with the white people on trains or in churches or theatres.

"Cold in the Head"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds in the head" will find that the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will build up the System, cleanse the Blood and render them less liable to colds. Repeated attacks of Acute Catarrh may lead to Chronic Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

A Buick Closed Car

Built For Summer Driving

The Buick Six Cylinder Touring Sedan is particularly popular because it combines perfectly the many advantages of the open touring model with the luxury and convenience of a fine closed car.

The wide windows provide touring model airiness; yet in case of a summer shower or dust storm, a turn of the hand instantly protects the occupants without obstructing their vision.

Buick traditional performance, power dependability and riding comfort are worthily typified in this Touring Sedan.
